s archives 2006 nov06 outstanding.html. ULM News Archived News | Return to News Center November 17, 2006 ULM's outstanding professors recognized as outstanding educators University of Louisiana at Monroe's six outstanding professors were honored as outstanding educators at CenturyTel's "Accent on Excellence" breakfast Nov. 16 at the Monroe Civic Center. The Outstanding Professor honor, which was last awarded in May, recognizes professors for teaching excellence, academic service, scholarship and community outreach. Those who received the honor include: Jeff Galle, English Serpil Saydam, mathematics and physics Kenneth Clow, marketing Wilson Campbell, kinesiology Karen Stansbury, nursing Khalid A. El Sayed, basic pharmaceutical sciences.

President James Cofer praised the efforts of the outstanding professors, area teachers, school board members and superintendents. All have contributed to the all-time high quality of students at ULM. Cofer also highlighted the accomplishments of the six professors who were recognized at the breakfast. Galle, a Christopher Marlowe scholar, has been published extensively; Saydam, has innovative classroom techniques; Clow recently published two books on marketing; Campbell is working on a fitness grant with Monroe City Schools; Stansbury has helped open wound care clinics across the country; and El Sayed is conducting ground-breaking cancer research. PANELIST PANELIST PANELIST Â Â Â Kathryn Reppond Chief Operations Officer at Central Oil & Supply Corp Adrienne Lafrance Downtown Manager of the City of West Monroe, LA Dr. Ashanti Jones PT, DPT Â Treat Yo' Self 2:15 pm - 3:00 pm Does your mental health and physical well-being appear at the top of your ever-growing to-do list? Women often manage the needs of others before tending to their own. The irony? We canâ t be nearly as helpful or productive in our personal and professional lives if we are running on half-empty. Mental health and physical health are equally important. If you had diabetes, you would seek medical intervention, right? If you are experiencing anxiety, depression, or feeling overwhelmed, you need to contact a therapist. Therapy is only one facet of self-care. Part of self-care is saying â noâ without guilt. When someone asks you to help with a time-consuming project, itâ s difficult to say â no.â However, if you are already stressed, saying â yes,â can lead to exhaustion and anxiety. Consistently saying â yesâ means eliminating time spent on self-care. Self-care can involve spending time outside, meditating, practicing a new hobby, enjoying a massage, or laughing with friends. Self-care also consists of the absence of things, such as 24/7 technology. Studies have proven that too much screen time at night causes depression, prevents restful sleep, and creates anxiety. Get organized. A planner or calendar can help you understand the magnitude of your work and personal demands. A visual representation can also allow you to eliminate less essential duties and, most importantly, schedule your self-care. Set a weekly self-care goal for yourself and reward yourself for achieving that goal. After all, you cannot be valuable to others if you deplete your energy. Most importantly, you cannot be useful to yourself.

ULM News Archived News | Return to News Center February 17, 2009 New Year, New You: Healthy lifestyle more than just physical fitness (Note: This article is the fifth in a series, "New Year, New You," aimed at raising awareness of opportunities that could improve the health of residents in northeast Louisiana. An annual report issued in December ranked Louisiana as the unhealthiest state in the nation.) Mental Health Counseling: Over in Room 284 of Strauss Hall at ULM, a broad range of additional mental health services is offered, also at a nominal fee. The clinic treats patients with symptoms of depression, suicidal ideation, anxiety, eating disorders, anger, grief, stress and addiction issues, just to name a few. One "jewel" tucked away inside the clinic is a brightly-colored playroom, where young children are surrounded by dollhouses, toy soldiers, drawing pads and crayons, and even a sand box. Therapists in training use the room to assist younger clients in expressing their feelings in a non-threatening environment. "Play therapy allows the child to manipulate the world on a smaller scale, something that cannot be done in the child's everyday environment," explained Dupre. Typically used in children ages 4 to 10, but also utilized for children up to age 12, play therapy taps into a child's natural means of expression as a therapeutic method to assist the child in coping with emotional stress or trauma, according to Dupre. "By playing with specially selected materials, and with the guidance of a counselor, the child plays out his or her feelings, bringing these hidden emotions to the surface," said Dupre. Regardless of age, the clinical staff's goal is to provide clients the opportunity to learn, change and develop through personal growth experiences. Dupre said the clinic offers a sliding scale for clients who feel they might not be able to afford the $15 counseling fee. For an appointment with Mental Health Counseling, call 318-342-1263. The Marriage and Family Therapy Clinic may be reached at 318-342-9797. The ULM counselors and therapists in both programs ensure the confidentiality of all clients and are committed to providing a quality experience for those in need.
